

Reclaiming Democracy

View our Corporate Personhood Timeline Page for a history of Corporate legislation.

Corporate influence in our government impacts our ability to protect and restore the environment. The Democracy in Action program develops a strategy to engage and organize a coalition of citizens and organizations to promote an amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

Recent surveys and polls have indicated that most Americans believe that corporations “have too much power and influence in Washington” and “money in politics is to blame for the dysfunction of the U.S. political system”.

In order for our government to be for the people, and by the people, it is necessary to establish that money is not speech. Human beings, not corporations, are persons entitled to constitutional rights. An amendment to the Constitution to remove corporate personhood is the next step to challenging the American oligarchy.

This page will be our Democracy in Action information distribution center linking to articles, data and information regarding steps we can take to reverse corporate rights. Sign the petition to take action against the corporate rights.

Begin reading about the impact upon our government from Corporate Influence.

Summer 2017 Intern Papers:

Corporate Personhood – A Problem Worth Solving, Aitan Groener, 9-2017

Opposing Oppressors and Transitioning to Reason, Chris Barnett, 8-2017

Additional Resources for Understanding Corporate Personhood

The Bill of Rights

The Fourteenth Amendment

Santa Clara County v. Southern Pacific Railroad Co - The case that formally began corporate personhood